Definitions

What is a private trust?

A private trust can be:

- · a non-complying self managed superannuation fund
- a family trust
- · a testamentary trust
- a fixed trust with fewer than 50 members
- a trust outside Australia.

It cannot be:

- a fixed trust with more than 50 members
- · a complying super fund
- · a public trust, for example a listed property trust or equity trust.

Involvement in a private trust

A person is involved in a private trust if they or their partner:

- · are the appointor, guardian or principal of the trust
- are a trustee
- are a shareholder or director of the trustee company
- are a beneficiary or included among the categories of beneficiaries
- · are a unitholder
- · are owed money by the trust
- have provided, for less than market value, property or services to the trust since 9 May 2000
- · are able to benefit from the trust
- can expect the trustee or appointor of a trust to act in accordance with their wishes.

A direct benefit

A person may enjoy a direct benefit from a trust by having the trust pay all their personal living expenses or using the trust assets as if they were their own personal assets.

An indirect benefit

A person may enjoy an indirect benefit from the trust by having access to and use of, trust assets such as holiday homes.

Assessment of private trust income and assets

Attribution

If we attribute any share of the income or assets of a trust to you, this means we treat them as yours.

To decide this we use either:

- · a control test
- · a source test.

The control test

A trustee often manages a trust from day to day but the person who has effective control is normally one who can:

- · dismiss and appoint a trustee
- veto a trustee's decision
- · exercise control over the trust in another manner
- · change the trust deed.

Continued

This person could be the trust's (rather than trustee's):

- appointor
- guardian or principal
- · associate.

We may find that the person who controls the trust is also a trustee.

A person may also control a trust by being able to influence the trustee to:

- act in their favour
- go along with their wishes.

The source test

The source test only applies where a person transfers assets or services to a trust after 7:30 pm Australian Eastern Standard Time (AEST) 9 May 2000.

The source test recognises that if you and/or your partner transfer assets or services to a trust and do not receive adequate consideration in return, you generally retain some means of control.

Where you can clearly show that a genuine gift has been made and you have no ongoing involvement in the trust at all, attribution would not be made.

Resignations

If you relinquish control of a private trust, you will be considered to have gifted the assets held by the trust.

Gifts may be assessed for 5 years from the date of transfer.

Note: Documentation may be requested.

Testamentary trusts

If a testamentary trust is activated as a result of a person's partner dying on or before 31 March 2001, the trust income and assets would generally be attributed to the formal controller.

If the trust is being administered for the benefit of the surviving partner and if the surviving partner is exercising informal control, attribution will be to the surviving partner.

Where testamentary trusts are activated as a result of a person's partner dying after 31 March 2001, the surviving partner will be attributed with the income and assets of the trust if:

- the surviving partner directly controls the trust
- an associate has control and the surviving partner is a potential beneficiary.

Associates

Associates include:

- spouse/partner
- · parents and grandparents
- children (whether biological, adoptive, step or foster) and their spouse/partner and the children of those parties and the spouse/partner of those children
- siblings and their spouse/partner
- nephews and nieces and their spouse/partner and the children of those parties and the spouse/partner of those children
- uncles, aunts and their spouse/partner and the children of those parties and the spouse/partner of those children
- a professional adviser such as an accountant, solicitor or financial adviser who may be expected to act in accordance with a person's wishes
- a trustee of a trust from which a person is capable of benefiting under the trust directly or indirectly
- a business partner
- a company where the directors could reasonably be expected to act in accordance with a person's directions or wishes, or where a person and associates are able to cast more than 50% of the votes that may be cast at a general meeting of the company.

Authority to inspect the property

Purpose of this authority

To enable us to correctly assess your entitlement, it may be necessary for a valuation of a property held by the trust to be completed.

In order to continue paying your correct entitlement, we may arrange to have the property professionally valued from time to time, at no cost to you.

Information about having a valuation

Why is a valuation required?

Social security law requires that the value of assets (e.g. property, shares in a company, units in a trust) is included when calculating the amount of pension, benefit or allowance payable.

How is the value of a property decided?

The value of real estate is its current market value, less any allowable debts on the property. The 'current market value' is the price the owner could expect to receive if the property was sold.

Through regular updates using relevant market data we will maintain the value of the property.

What happens if there is no permission to inspect the property?

If the value of the property is likely to affect a person's entitlement to social security payments or the rate of payment, but no permission to inspect the property is provided, the person's payment may not be granted, payment may be reduced or payment may be stopped.

What if you are not satisfied with the valuation?

If you are unhappy with a valuation, you should contact us. We will check the details, explain the decision, and if necessary arrange a further valuation. This gives you a chance to correct misunderstandings or present new information. If you disagree with the decision and would like the decision to be reviewed, we will forward the matter to a review officer.

Information for primary producers

Definition of primary production

Primary producer means a person whose principal occupation is primary production.

Primary production means:

- production resulting directly from the cultivation of land
- the maintenance of animals or poultry for the purpose of selling them or their bodily produce, including natural increase
- fishing operations
- forest operations
- the manufacture of dairy produce by the person who produced the raw material used in that manufacture.

Special concession for primary producers

There is a special concession for primary producers who meet certain conditions. This concession will allow some primary producers to retain limited appointorship powers without the income and assets of the private trust being attributed to them.

Note: Primary producers taking up this concession after 31 March 2002, will be considered to have made a gift.

The conditions are:

Family member running the farm

As this concession is aimed at farmers wishing to retire and hand control on to the next generation, the concession is limited to circumstances where a family member is operating, or takes over the operation of the primary production enterprise.

This will allow the older generation to retire without the need for the farm to support several generations.

Income and asset limits

The special concession is limited to primary producers who, together with their partners, meet certain income and asset requirements.

Primary production assets include primary production land as well as all other primary production assets such as plant, machinery and livestock.

The value of the primary production enterprise is based on current market values. We may arrange to have the primary production assets valued at no cost to the farmer or the trust.

The net value of the primary production enterprise is determined by deducting the allowable primary production liabilities from the current market value of the primary production assets (less the net value of the principal home of the farmer if that principal home is owned by the trust).

70% rule

More than 70% of the net value of the assets of the trust (excluding the net value of the principal home of the farmer if that principal home is owned by the trust) must relate to assets used wholly or principally for the purposes of carrying on a primary production enterprise.

Limited appointorship

The powers that the appointor can hold must be limited.

This means that an irrevocable clause must be inserted into the trust deed providing that:

- the appointor's power to appoint a new trustee can only be exercised upon the trustee's death, resignation or legal disablement
- any power of veto held by the appointor is limited to the power to veto the sale of the primary production land.

The appointor must also make a statutory declaration of their resignation from the trust, stating they will not exert any control over, or benefit in any way from the trust, beyond the limited benefits allowed.

Neither they nor their partner can:

- be the trustee, or be able to be appointed as trustee
- · have the power to change the trust deed
- be *capital or income beneficiaries of the trust.

(*A capital beneficiary or income beneficiary is a person who is able to receive either capital or income at any time from the trust).

Loans from appointors

Appointors who have large loans outstanding to the trust may be assessed as still having control over the trust. If you have a large loan to the trust, you should seek advice from us as to the effect on your eligibility to this concession.

Life interest in home

The appointor and their partner can retain a life interest in their home if it is situated on the primary production property.

Incidental fringe benefits

The appointor and their partner can receive some incidental fringe benefits such as food, water, fuel, gas or electricity for personal consumption.

Receiving income from the farm

The appointor and their partner may continue to draw a combined income from the trust(s) during the 5 years after transfer to a limited appointorship if they are affected by the gifting rules.

If there are several primary production trusts, the income limit applies to the combined income from all the trusts.

If the gifting rules do not apply to a person, all income from the trust must cease for the concession to apply.

For more information on the current primary production income and asset concessions, go to humanservices.gov.au/assets

Attribution to new controller

Usually the family member who takes over the operation of the primary production enterprise would be appointed as the trustee of the trust.

The new controller will have the income and assets of the trust taken into account should they or their partner be receiving an income support payment. This is because, as controller, the income and assets of the trust would be attributed to them.
