Investment approach

The fund uses a systematic quantitative rules-based approach to build a diversified portfolio by considering factors such as the quality of a company, its growth potential and its implied value relative to its price. The approach considers the tax position of each holding and incorporates additional active investment insights to take advantage of dividends, associated foreign tax credits and other tax effective payments with the aim of delivering an enhanced after-tax return.

Performance commentary

For the one-month period ending 31 December 2025 the after fee and tax return was 0.14%.

Market commentary

Despite periods of market pressure during the month, global equities ended December in positive territory.

US equity markets were broadly flat over the period, underperforming global peers. Investor sentiment was influenced by a mix of supportive and cautionary factors, including a 25bps interest rate cut by the Federal Reserve and easing inflation dynamics on the one hand, and ongoing concerns around labour market conditions on the other.

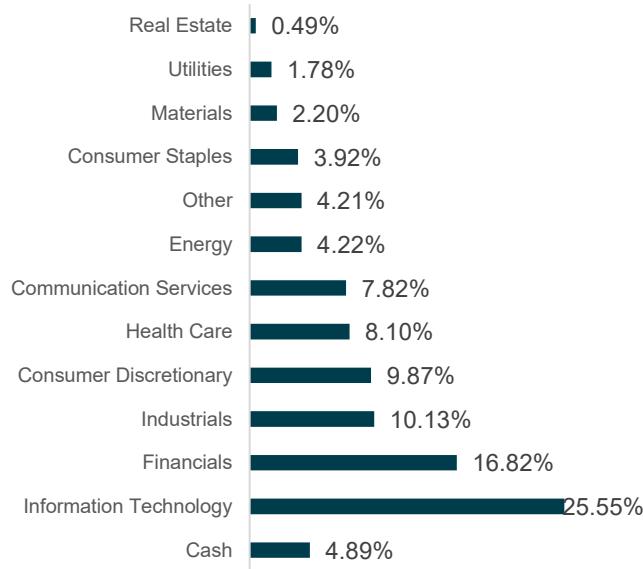

European equity markets capped off a very strong year with another solid month of gains, rising by more than 2% in December. Financials were the strongest performing sector, while industrials and consumer discretionary stocks also delivered robust returns. By contrast, weaker oil prices weighed on the energy sector, and both consumer staples and communication services lagged. UK equities also performed well, with sentiment supported by a 25bps rate cut from the Bank of England and better than expected inflation data.

Elsewhere, Asia Pacific equities recorded further gains, with Taiwan and Korea extending their strong performance as technology led momentum persisted through December. In contrast, equities in China and Hong Kong declined, reflecting weak macroeconomic data and ongoing structural challenges, which damped risk appetite and weighed on investor sentiment.
